9:10am – 9:55am	Constructability – traditional liability and the emerging exposures in infrastructure projects Angela Vella , Practice Leader, Gallagher Australia is in the midst of its greatest ever construction boom as we transform cities and develop an urban metropolis. From new metro rail networks, to hospitals, roads and tunnels, airports, light rail, schools, residential precincts, shopping, commercial real estate and casinos – there is an abundance of work both above and below ground in our cities which is creating great opportunities but also great risk. Never have we seen the sheer volume of projects centralised in one place – what challenges does this accumulation of work present and what impact will it have on us? In this presentation Angela will discuss planned and current major projects and the risk exposures arising from these, including how the liability insurance market is responding to the changing risk landscape. Angela will also explore: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • key liability risks in infrastructure projects • the evolution of liability policies on major projects • claims for construction liability and how insurers are responding.
