A MAN OF INFLUENCE — CHAN HWEE SENG

When Crawford loss adjuster Chan Hwee Seng got a call from a broker about a break-in at a jewellery shop at 4:30 am in the morning, he grabbed his camera and went straight to the scene.

'We must respond quickly to protect underwriters' interests,' says Chan, who is currently Crawford Singapore's Chairman.

Starting his career as a trainee loss adjuster, Chan feels very privileged that Crawford management saw in him the potential to lead the company.

'I was given a lot of opportunities to learn, and as I see it, leadership should be by example,' he says.

'From day one, I inculcated new recruits with the proper values of the profession like integrity, fairness and delivering prompt and efficient claims services to clients.'

Having trained many loss adjusters in Singapore, Chan is extremely proud that wherever he goes, people remember his influence.

As far as he is aware, Chan is the first ever Asian loss adjuster to be employed by an international loss adjusting company.

His first six months on the job, he attended a massive fire at the local Robinson Department Store which killed nine people. For Chan, the experience decided him on loss adjusting as a career.

After 14 years at Graham Miller, Chan was appointed managing director, a position he held for 18 years, including through the company's acquisition by Crawford USA in 1990.

In 2004, he became Executive General Adjuster, Global Technical Services (GTS) and Chairman, Crawford Singapore.

He is well-known for exposing insurance fraud.

'Whether you call me a managing director or chairman, I'm still basically a loss adjuster,' Chan modestly says.

Chan is very concerned that a major shortage of loss adjusting talent will impact insurers' ability to deal with highly complex claims of the future.

'My point of view would be to incorporate both insurance and loss adjusting into the school curriculum, so students do not view this subject as something so alien when they graduate.'

For that reason, Chan has chosen to play a major role in the education of claims handlers.

In 2010, he was instrumental in setting up the Claims Technician Course (CTC) a collaboration between the Australasian Institute of Chartered Loss Adjusters (AICLA) and the Singapore Insurance Institute.

To date, more than 300 claims personnel have undergone the training and qualified by examination.

Chan's advice to aspiring loss adjusters is to be connected to the industry.

'We can't work in isolation,' he says. 'Loss adjusting is a component of the insurance industry which is part of financial services in any country.'

He also has the following message for the industry:

1. Be client-centric — without clients, our business would not exist. Our role is to ensure that we deliver our services and products in a fast, efficient, high-quality manner.
2. Return to the basics of honesty and integrity, hard work and building knowledge.
3. Be innovative — We must be geared towards clients' requirements as their business models change.
